Naked Blue Guy comes from Colorado and is a maintenance man for a major clothing outlet. He is soft-spoken and easy going, and behind the blue hair, I can almost see a Devere Myer (Delirious on the play) in his working. The blue is all he knows. His Devere Myer stands up well in a Del in real life, but you don’t imagine them here.

This is the windy part of the world, he said. "The world we live in is the abnormal.

Then there are Jim and Hope, a senior couple with nothing on but matching body paint and strategically placed jewels. You would never imagine that he is a plumber and she is an engineer from Marin County, California. "We sent our boy off to school and came on out," said Jim. "Our neighborhood is here too. He’s a natural-food broker.

There is Andrea aka Ally who is a Spanish trouser-wearing, wearing a gold and black mini skirt, a black halter top and black angel wings and Jayson aka Space Otter wearing a skimpy flowered sun dress who works in AIDS prevention. Two topless woman walk past me dressed like strippers. Surprisingly, they ARE strippers. Some people can never leave the office, even on vacation.

Some visually notable citizens, however, have been the most respectable of jobs. Lisa, for instance, is an interior designer from San Francisco, who has what looks like two angora rabbits clinging to her breasts, and Shannon who is a bank manager in Canada who prefers to go shirtless.

Why is one side firmer than the other? Did the Black Rock steamroller drop its drawers at six o’clock? There is a simpler explanation: prevailing winds blow toward and dust collects downstream. In addition, when Black Rock City disappears, the 2:00-to-6:00 area is heavily traveled for events unrelated to our event. The vehicles that traverse it include 18-wheeled trucks.

Some people drink at the fountain of knowledge; others just rinse, gargle and spit.
There is still in Black Rock City's sketels. The Gazette staff was overwhelmed by the response to the 40-hour course in community policing as preparation for this Black Rock City 2001. We are trying to de-emphasize drug "maker" service," said C. J. Ross, the federal Bureau of Law-enforcement agencies that work with the Burning Man organization are trying to change how we approach the visitors here. We met quite a bit of "top" Big Bear and the organizers. They gave as a lot of material, and we have read through the website. This isn't a rave in the desert. I see this as an art show. This is a community-based art show. The special 40-hour course in community policing involves classes on building community, relations, counseling, how to talk to people, and a great deal of role playing. "It's fun for the officers too," said Ross. You have two law-enforcement officers role-playing what to do when some guy comes up to them because he is all mad someone just stole his hog. Ross credited Donetta Gordon, who coordinates Nevada's law-enforcement agencies, with the move towards community policing in Black Rock City. "Donetta Gordon is a great believer in community-policing based on a platform of service to the visitors here. After meeting many times with the heads of law enforcement for Washoe storm and riding through the gale-force winds that swirled about them. While Pam was expecting 1,000 women to ride last year, the event still went on. The original cadre of five (Amie Paschal, Catherine Ager aka Miss Attitude, Mija Lee aka Rock Belt Betty, Melissa Aggregate aka Lavia Rain, and Space Z. Cogwogg), the ride has developed the potential to raise consciousness about women's issues. A Critical Tires ride through the Golden Bridge Bridge is imaginative for raising awareness and funds for Radical Breast Cancer Prevention. From Black Rock City to the city by the bay, the pioneer women of the playa will ride empowered into the new millennium.

Great Bike of Fire
Rock Boy
"Beethoven Never Did This," a piano duet with Salatir's Calliope and a fire axe (at 9pm on Friday, on the Information booth. Important note: riders need to stop by the City Desk at the Black Rock Gazette in Center Camp and drop off a question for the PlayaChicken, Inc., a proud corporate sponsor of Burning Man 2001.

QUESTION of the DAY: What would your mother say if she knew you were here? "That's my girl." "Why didn't you come down to Vegas and see me after you came all this way?"
I spent two hours looking at the web site, and I still don't know what it's about. Be careful: don't drink too much or take too many drugs. [attachment comments]

Enjoy yourself!
You're completely crazy.
Shame on you, Steve.

What an interesting place. What a lot of interesting people. Praise Jesus!

Be careful: don't drink too much or take too much of that will definitely provide reasons for Black Rock City's diapers. A trained in, he did say he has developed a style he knew you were here? "If we don't change direction soon, we'll end up where we're going." -John Lennon

We are trying to de-emphasize drug "maker" service," said C. J. Ross, the federal Bureau of Law-enforcement agencies that work with the Burning Man organization are trying to change how we approach the visitors here. We met quite a bit of "top" Big Bear and the organizers. They gave as a lot of material, and we have read through the website. This isn't a rave in the desert. I see this as an art show. This is a community-based art show. The special 40-hour course in community policing involves classes on building community, relations, counseling, how to talk to people, and a great deal of role playing. "It's fun for the officers too," said Ross. You have two law-enforcement officers role-playing what to do when some guy comes up to them because he is all mad someone just stole his hog. Ross credited Donetta Gordon, who coordinates Nevada's law-enforcement agencies, with the move towards community policing in Black Rock City. "Donetta Gordon is a great believer in community-policing based on a platform of service to the visitors here. After meeting many times with the heads of law enforcement for Washoe

"What an interesting place. What a lot of interesting people. Praise Jesus!"

"Shame on you, Steve."
"You're completely crazy."
"Enjoy yourself."

From Black Rock City to the city by the bay, the pioneer women of the playa will ride empowered into the new millennium.

Great Bike of Fire
Rock Boy
"Beethoven Never Did This," a piano duet with Salatir's Calliope and a fire axe (at 9pm on Friday, on the Information booth. Important note: riders need to stop by the City Desk at the Black Rock Gazette in Center Camp and drop off a question for the PlayaChicken, Inc., a proud corporate sponsor of Burning Man 2001.

QUESTION of the DAY: What would your mother say if she knew you were here? "That's my girl." "Why didn't you come down to Vegas and see me after you came all this way?"
I spent two hours looking at the web site, and I still don't know what it's about. Be careful: don't drink too much or take too many drugs. [attachment comments]

Enjoy yourself!
You're completely crazy.
Shame on you, Steve.

What an interesting place. What a lot of interesting people. Praise Jesus!